

Get to know the Field Guide

Get students with disabilities and employers preparing for employment early

What it means

Get to know the individual employment journeys of students with disabilities. Then use this knowledge to help employers remove barriers to employment for these students.

What it achieves

Making employment pathways easier to navigate increases the likelihood students with disabilities will embark on successful careers, which gives employers access to a larger talent pool.

What you get

- Presentations to help students write resumes and cover letters.
- Workshops and worksheets to support students in disclosing disabilities and requesting accommodations.
- Guides to enable employers to create inclusive hiring practices and accessible workplaces.

One of the things that came up in a lot of conversations was the fact that a lot of our partners or agencies will accept students, but these partners and agencies are not sure how to support them with regard to their accommodation needs.

- Deandra Christopher, George Brown College

