

#AbleTo

Get to know the Field Guide

Support students with disabilities to explore and address their career needs

What it means

Develop an Employment Pathways Facilitator (EPF) role(s) at your school to individually explore and address the specific career needs of students with disabilities. This role is adaptable to any institution and creates an alternative to the one solution to one disability approach.

What it achieves

Having this person or function gives students with disabilities customized and coordinated support, which enables them to move more easily along their individual employment pathways.

What you get

- Workbooks for students.
- Employment pathway planning tools for EPFs.
- EPF role descriptions.

The Employment Pathways Facilitator can play a pivotal role in helping a student explore their needs on an individual level.

- Tara Connolly, Carleton University